INTEREST IN COWS KEEN

FARMERS EAGER FOR INFORMATION IN DAIRY DISCUSSION.

LEGUME FEEDS URGED

C. F. Stephens Gives Different Rations.—Record Keeping and Building of Herd Advised.

A concert will be given at the State Teachers College tonight by the College orchestra, complimentary to the visitors at Farmers Week. Miss Helen Dvorak will assist the orchestra as violin soloist.

The regular morning College assembly was postponed this evening until tonight because of the Farmers Week program in the auditorium.

Tomorrow's Program.

10 a. m.—"Results of Recent Hog Feeding Experiments in Missouri," Prof. L. A. Weaver.

11 a. m.—"More Profits From Sheep," J. W. Burch.

1:30 p. m.—"Feeding Hogs on Pasture," Mr. Weaver.

2:30 p. m.—"Producing and Feeding Calves," Mr. Burch.

A group of interested dairymen from Holt, Nodaway and Buchanan counties gathered at the auditorium of the State Teachers College this morning for the second day of Farmers Week and by their questioning of the speakers indicated that the dairy phase of farming is receiving more and more attention in this section of Northwest Missouri.

The morning session was devoted to discussions by C. F. Stephens, of the extension division of the Missouri College of Agriculture, Alfred Zulauf, tester of the Nodaway Cow Testing Association, and R. A. Kinnaird, head of the agriculture department of the State Teachers College here, who is largely responsible for the development of the College dairy herd to a high point of production.

Intrested in Feeding.

The proper ration for dairy cows was of especial interest to the auditors, who questioned Mr. Stephens closely regarding the different combinations of feeds and their costs. Mr. Stephens emphasized the fact that the growing of legume hay for dairy feed is the most economical way to produce milk.

His discussion was devoted largely to the three kinds of roughness and the combination of protein supplements. He first gave a list of the low protein roughage, timothy, fodder, silage and cane, and the high protein roughages consisting of legume hays such as alfalfa, soy beans and red clover. The medium roughage is a combination of the high and low protein elements.

The value of silage as a feed was stressed by Mr. Stephens, who said that for ten or more cows silage has proved to be the cheapest feed and builds up the cows.

He outlined the grain mixture to be fed with the low protein roughage, as recommended by the Missouri College of Agriculture. A combination of 100 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of bran, 100 pounds of cottonseed meal, with an additional of bone meal for the mineral elements costs about $1.97 a hundred pounds, without considering the cost of the bone meal.

Has Its Objections.

This mixture, while it has to be used by many dairymen in different sections of the country, is not so palatable as a heavy feed and also has a tendency to constipate the cows. He suggested splitting the cottonseed meal to fifty pounds and substituting fifty pounds of linseed oil meal, which will increae the milk production but may cost a little more.

For the high protein roughage, the College recommends the addition of 300 pounds of corn meal, 100 pounds of bran or oats and fifty pounds of cotton seed meal with the addition of four and a half pounds of bone meal for the minerals. The cost, at present day prices, was figured at $1.58 a hundred pounds, or $1.38 cheaper per cow per month in favor of the high protein legumes.

This grain mixture tends to give the cows a higher percentage of butter fat and milk, is more palatable and legumes are the best source of minerals, Mr. Stephens said. For the medium combination of legumes and non-legume roughages, Mr. Stephens said the grain feed recommended consists of 400 pounds of ground corn, 200 pounds of bran, 100 pounds of cotton seed meal and fourteen pounds of bone meal.

Goforth and Reimer Heard Clearly Here

Broadcasting by Orchestra From Raton, N. M., Comes In Fine.—Renew Contract.

Donald Goforth and Cairl Reimer, Maryville boys with Mac's Blue Demons orchestra of Raton, N. M., have renewed their contract and will continue with that organization, playing at Shuler Auditorium. Goforth will continue to be its director and Reimer will play first violin.

The two boys are making exceptional progress in the theatre orchestra, which often broadcasts from radio station KGFL at Raton in various feature programs. In addition to their pit work the orchestra doubles in stage presentation.

Last night the orchestra broadcast from 12 o'clock until 1:30 and was clearly heard here by Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Reimer and family, as well as by Harry Todd. Mr. Reimer's son played several solos.

KILLED WHILE MAKING MOVE

G. E. CLARK, 25, VICTIM IN ACCIDENT NEAR ELMO.

CRUSHED BY HAYRACK

Young Farmer's Head Caught Between Wagon and Barn When Horses Start Suddenly.

Granville Elmer Clark, 25-year-old farmer near Elmo, was fatally injured shortly after 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when a team of horses, hitched to a hayrack loaded with furniture, made a break to run away and crowded Clark between the hayrack and a barn.

Mr. Clark's skull was crushed, and he died a few minutes after the accident.

The tragedy occurred on the William Dewhurst farm, a mile and a half northeast of Elmo, as Clark was unloading some furniture into the barn. Clark was moving from the Coleman farm, west of Elmo to the Dewhurst farm.

Mr. Clark had driven the team and hayrack up to the door of the barn and began unloading the furniture. The horses gave a sudden lurch and Clark grasped the check rein on the horse nearest the building. The horses crowded into the wall of the building and Clark was unable to retain his hold. The hayrack lurched forward and against the barn, pinioning and crushing the young farmer's head. A physician was called but Clark died in only a few minutes.

The body was taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Eddie Bishop north of Elmo. No funeral arrangements had been made early this morning.

Mr. Clark is survived by his widow and 2-year-old son, Billie, his mother, Mrs. Lila Clark of Burlington Junction, and four sisters, Mrs. John Blackford, Burlington Junction; Mrs. Eddie Bishop, Elmo; Mrs. Thomas McConn, Chillicothe; and Mrs. Warren Stanton of College Springs.

All the sisters except the one living at Loveland are here.

CAN'T ESCAPE PERSONAL TAX

TOWNSHIP COLLECTOR TO SEIZE PROPERTY.

TOMORROW LAST DAY

Two Officers Named to Visit Persons Who Haven't Paid—Auction to Be Held Later.

Stringent measures are to be taken tomorrow to collect delinquent 1927 personal taxes in Polk township, Emmett Bartram, collector, said today.

He announced that Harve England and Cabell Childress will be deputized to go to the homes of persons who have failed to pay their personal taxes and will attach the personal property unless payment is made when these men call.

This measure will be taken because the delinquent tax book must be extended and final settlement made with the county court in a few days and the county court has insisted on the full collection of personal taxes this year.

Mr. Bartram said he would be at the city hall tomorrow and that it would be the last day on which he would receive payments of personal taxes. B. F. Dougan, chief of police, also will be given a list of delinquent personal taxes and will be authorized to receive payments while on duty tomorrow, the collector said.

The proceedure of Deputies England and Childress will be to go to the homes where personal taxes have not been paid, seek final settlement, and if it is not made will attach the personal property and have a truck haul the personal goods to a storage house. It will remain in storage for fifteen days while the sale is being advertised and then will be put up at public auction to the highest bidder.

Costs of advertising, storage, sale and the 2 per cent penalty will be deducted from the sale of all attached personal property in addition to the tax itself, and any remainder from the sale will be returned to the owner.

Mr. Bartram estimated that $300 remains delinquent on the personal tax book of Polk township.

Parnell Couple Wed 62 Years Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Conrad, Who Will Observe Anniversary, Have Lived in County 51 Years.

Test of City Water Shows It Very Pure

Samples Sent From Five Different Taps and None Show Presence of "B Coli."

Samples of city water sent to the state health commissioner in Jefferson City on February 22 were declared to be satisfactory, according to a letter received today by J. W. Qualls, superintendent of the waterworks. These samples were obtained at the city pump station, the county health office, H. W. Kramer, Engelmann's Greenhouses, and C. J. Eckert. None of the samples contained B Coli.

The letter stated:

"The above examination was made in accordance with the standard methods of water analysis of the American Public Health Association. The standard for safe drinking water is not to exceed two B Coli per 100 cubic centimeters (100 cc is about 1 cupful.)"

NEW ACTIVITY FOR HOOVER

ORGANIZATION WORK IS STARTED IN MARYLAND.

DAWES CAUSES TALK

Vice-President Lunches With Nebraska Governor.—Hoover Forces Seek Some Iowa Support.

By Paul R. Mallon
United Press Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 29.—The Hoover and anti-Hoover groups showed fresh activity today.

Hoover organization work was being started in Maryland following an application at Annapolis late yesterday to place Hoover's name upon the ballot in the May 7 primary.

Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, manifested displeasure that Hoover had failed to get more than two or three prospective Iowa delegates. He announced he would go with Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, to the Hoover headquarters here with an urgent demand that the leaders "get some fight into the campaign." Moses was one of the first Republican leaders to declare for Hoover.

Dawes Dines McMullen.

Vice-President Charles G. Dawes invited to lunch Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska and thereby set political tongues wagging. McMullen protested several weeks ago against the "favorite son" candidacy of Senator Norris of his state. McMullen wanted to support former Governor Lowden of Illinois. More recent reports indicate, however, that McMullen will go along with the Norris movement for the time being.

Norris told the United Press he did not know McMullen was coming to town and that he had arranged no conference with the governor, although he would like to see him.

Dawes is a supporter of Lowden and is himself regarded as a possibility for the nomination, although he publicly announced he was not a candidate. Candidates for the nomination must first file for the Nebraska primaries before March 10.

Maryland Favorable to Hoover.

The situation in Maryland is said here to be favorable to Hoover, although there was some disagreement recently over the action of J. Craig McClanahan in forming a "Hoover-for-President club."

The Moses-Edge agitation over Iowa results was not accepted by party leaders generally as any serious dissatisfaction with the progress of the Hoover campaign. Iowa generally has been accepted as a Lowden state. The district conventions held there Monday endorsed Lowden for the most part, although two or three indicated they might elect Hoover delegates.

If Hoover gets two or three delegates there, most of his leaders will be elated. Hence, many are inclined to believe that Moses' displeasure is not to be considered as serious.

ASKS FOR AN OUTRIGHT BAN

KELLOGG STILL HOPES FRANCE WILL OUTLAW WAR.

WORDING UNIMPORTANT

Latest American Note Makes Concession Expected to React in Favor of U. S.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The Senate Foreign Relations committee voted today to report the new French arbitration treaty to the Senate with recommendations for favorable action.

Secretary of State Kellogg informed the committee in executive session that the new treaty would not interfere with the old Bryan treaty. He agreed, however, to exchange notes with the French government on this subject to note officially an understanding that the old Bryan treaty is still in effect in all its provisions.

Kellogg agreed to send a note to France on the subject today.

It is understood Senate ratification of the treaty will be held up until the exchange of notes is completed.

The committee unanimously favored a report on the treaty with this understanding about the Bryan treaty.

The new treaty provides arbitration of all disputes between this government and France except those relating to the Monroe Doctrine, League of Nations, and matters of domestic concern.

Hope for Anti-War Pact Yet.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Hope that France still can see its way clear to joining the United States and other leading powers in a simple and unqualified renunciation of war was expressed by Secretary Kellogg in his latest note to the French embassador.

The communication, published today, is the most sweeping in character of any in the series exchanged with Paris on the subject. It specifically declared that "the precise language to be employed" in the declaration "is a matter of indifference to the United States, so long as it clearly and unmistakably sets forth the determination of the parties to abolish war among themselves."

Attitude Changed.

In this respect, the American attitude toward the proposal first put forward by Foreign Minister Briand of France has been completely changed. Originally the United States sought to ignore the Briand suggestion, while subsequent correspondence made it clear that this country was considering the proposal only at the request of France. In the present note, however, Kellogg has taken the position of pleading with France that wars—all wars—be definitely renounced.

Picturing war as "an assault upon the stability of human society" which "should be suppressed in the common interest," the note declared that this suppression can not be effected by a treaty loaded with reservations and qualifications.

France previously asked that the suggested multilateral declaration be restricted to wars of aggression. Up on this point, the note stated that "of such a declaration were accompanied by definitions of the word 'aggression' and by exceptions and qualifications stipulating when nations would be justified in going to war, its effect would be greatly weakened and its positive value as a guaranty of peace virtually destroyed."

Copies of the note were sent to the British, Italian, German and Japanese governments, all of whom will be asked to sign the declaration if an agreement with France can be reached.

Many here believe, however, that the note constitutes a gesture by America which may leave Briand in a somewhat embarrassing position, at the same time leaving the United States with credit for undertaking a widespread peace maneuver.

Chillicothe to Have One Paper

Chillicothe, Mo., Feb. 29.—Consolidation of the Chillicothe Constitution with the Chillicothe Tribune was announced here today.

The papers were published for the last time separately today and will be published as the Chillicothe Constitution-Tribune tomorrow. Clarence E. Watkins, editor of the Constitution, will be associated with Henry S. Beardsley, formerly editor of the Trenton Times, in publication of the new paper.

PRESIDENT IN CONFERENCES ON FARM BILL

Coolidge Discusses It Separately With Three Leaders.—Equalization Fee Remains.

Washington, Feb. 29. — President Coolidge conferred separately with three men concerning farm relief today.

He learned the House agriculture committee will report a bill, probably next week, containing the equalization fee to which he objects.

Representative Purnell, Indiana, ranking Republican on the committee, told the President that much, although he said all other features not pleasing to the President would be eliminated from the bill.

Earlier, Senator McNary told the President he had revised his bill, but that it still contained the equalization provision.

President Coolidge later called Secretary of Agriculture Jardine for a conference, at which the general farm relief situation was reported discussed.

SEES AMERICA TAKING TO AIR

ONLY A QUESTION OF TIME, SAYS LINDBERGH.

DOESN'T RECOGNIZE AL

Flier Unimpressed by Greeting of New York Governor.—Flies to Albany.

Medal to Cost $1,500.

Washington, Feb. 29. — The House today adopted a resolution by Republican Floor Leader Tilson appropriating $1,500 for a gold medal to be presented to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Duplicate bronze medals will be sold to the public to reimburse the expenditure.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 29.—"America has started to fly," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told a joint session of the New York State legislature this afternoon.

"It is only a question of time," he predicted, "Before people will travel from city to city in airplanes as they do now in automobiles."

Lindbergh reached the governor's office with Lieut. Lester J. Maitland, Pacific flier, and Assistant Secretary of War F. Trubee Davison.

As the fliers stepped over the threshold, the chief executive advanced and extended his hand, saying:

"How are you, Lindy? Welcome to Albany."

Fails to Recognize "Al."

Lindbergh, apparently not knowing it was the governor speaking to him, did not say a word until Davidson had said:

"This is Governor Smith."

Then Lindbergh smiled and answered, "thanks."

He announced his intention of proceeding to Boston, saying he would probably leave late this afternoon.

The governor signed an aviation bill and presented Lindbergh with the pen.

Disappointing a large crowd assembled at the airport Lindbergh came to Albany, today by automobile from Schenectady, where he had landed his Ryan cabin monoplane after a flight from Curtiss Field, Long Island.

Landing at Albany Dangerous.

Lindbergh said he landed at Schenectady to avoid strong headwinds which would have made the descent at Albany difficult, if not dangerous. Only a handful of persons greeted him at the Schenectady flying field.

Lindbergh, flying a Ryan brougham plane with four of his business associates as passengers, started at 10:12 a. m. After a run of less than 100 yards, the tail skid snapped off, dropping the rudder to the ground.

Lindbergh peered out the side of the side door of the plane, apparently decided the damage was immaterial, waved away mechanics who came running up and continued on his flight.

Without a tail skid and the rudder damaged, Lindbergh had to land on two wheels, without the aid of the tail skid as a balance.

Lindbergh will appear before the New York assembly to urge some action by that body on aviation laws for the state.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 29.—Charles U. Becker, Secretary of State, today filed declaration of his candidacy for re-election on the Republican ticket.

DIRIGIBLE TO CUBA SAFELY

THE LOS ANGELES MOORED IN GUANACAYABO BAY.

HER PROGRESS SLOW

Headwinds Delay Big Ship on Return Flight From Canal Zone.—Ellyson Not Found.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The navy dirigible Los Angeles was moored to the navaf tender, Patoka in Guanacayabo Bay, Cuba, at 1:05 o'clock this afternoon, about two hours after arriving there from the Panama Canal Zone on its return to Lakehurst, N. J.

Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, who transmitted this word to the Navy Department, did not say how long the Los Angeles would remain there.

The airship left Panama at 10:15 a. m., yesterday and flew the 771 miles to Cuba at an average speed of 33½ miles an hour. Headwinds accounted for the slow progress.

Communication was maintained at intervals between the radio operator aboard the dirigible and a radio man at naval headquarters here.

Ellyson Search Continues.

Washington, Feb. 29.—Thirty-three planes and three airships were concentrated today in the search for Commander Ellyson of the Aircraft Carrier Lexington, and two companions, missing since they started a flight from Hampton Roads, Va., for Annapolis, Md., to reach Ellyson's daughter's bedside.

Army and navy craft joined in combing the Chesapeake Bay and its adjacent territory.

Twelve army planes returned to Bolling Field just before noon without finding trace of the missing plane.

A radio appeal last night called for citizens' aid in exploring swamps along the Chesapeake Bay between Hampton Roads, Va., where the aviators took off at 2 a. m., Monday, and Annapolis, Md., the destination they failed to reach.

Brooks' Body Still Missing.

Melbourne, Fla., Feb. 29.—Searching along the beach had failed early today to find the body of Harry Brooks, Ford pilot whose plane fell into the ocean near here Saturday.

Parts of a propellor from Brooks "Flivver" plane were washed ashore yesterday.

Organized searching parties were out again at daybreak today.

FOUR MARINES SLAIN MONDAY IN NICARAGUA

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 29.—Four United States marines were killed and nine were injured, one seriously, when Sandino Rebels ambushed a pack train at Daraile Monday, it was announced today.

Names of the killed and wounded are not yet available.

The train was commanded by Lieut. Edward P. O'Day. It consisted of 36 marines and 85 animals.

The pack train was returning to Condega and Yali after the attack.

The ambush of the United States marine force is one of the most serious, from the United States standpoint, of the campaign in which marines have been co-operating with native Nicaraguan government to suppress the revolutionary forces of General Sandino.

At the Havana Pan-American conference and elsewhere, United States spokesmen have said that all the United States was interested in was in insuring a free, impartial election, and that as soon as it was found impossible to hold one, United States forces would leave Nicaragua, which they entered at the Nicaraguan government's own request.

Japanese Planning U. S. Flight Killed

Tokio, Feb. 29.—Yukichi Goto, 28, one of four Japanese airmen selected to try a Japan-Seattle flight in July, was killed today when his airplane crashed on a hill at Kyushu during a test flight.

Weather

Cloudy with probably light rain; slightly colder tonight. Minimum about 26 degrees.

INTEREST IN COWS KEEN

Two Topics This Afternoon.

Mr. Stephens talk this afternoon was to be divided between "Prevention of Abortion," and "Management of Dairy Herd on Pasture." An inspection of the dairy barn of the State Teachers College was to be made by the visitors at Farmers Week, under the direction of R. A. Kinnaird and C. H. Withington of the College Agriculture department.

Mr. Zulauf, whom Farmer Week listeners vouched "knew his business," told of the reasons for keeping records of cows and the results obtained. Because cows vary so much in production, a record should be kept to find out the returns on each cow, in order to observe whether she is worth her keep, he argued.

He said there were about two million dairy cows in the county and declared one-third of them were kept at a loss. Keeping records will lead to proper feeding, better breeding and buying of better females, Mr. Zulauf said. The records of cow testing associations have proven that better methods and better management prevails than where no records of the cows are maintained.

Breeding Important.

"Breeding Up the Dairy Herd" was the subject of Mr. Kinnaird's discussion. Mr. Kinnaird stated that although the profit depends on the production per cow, even after the best methods of feeding are known, the breeding of a dairy herd is a most important phase. He said he was not impressed with a cow that was easy on feed, because a good dairy cow which might eat three times as much feed as another cow possibly will prove more profitable because she will give ten times as much milk. "I am not interested in the dainty eaters," he said.

However, Mr. Kinnaird said the only way to get better cows is to raise the average of herd, and this can be obtained only by breeding it into them. The situation now is such that the herd must be improved on the individual farmer's place, as it is almost impossible to go out and buy good dairy cows, he explained.

Examples were cited by Mr. Kinnaird how breeding scrub cows and their daughters to purebred bulls had doubled and even tripled the milk production of the daughters and granddaughters.

Among those interested in the dairy discussion this morning were:

Harold O. Staples and L. T. Murphy, Burlington Junction; I. V. Moore, Ravenwood; W. H. Zimmerman and Thos. E. Deem, Cameron; Thos. S. Young, Bedison; Arthur Hartman, N. E. Hartman, Lloyd Stephens and F. R. Stephens, Barnard; M. G. Safley, M. B. Harris and Frank Miller, Hopkins; Carl E. Helzer and W. B. Gex, Graham; C. W. Goodspeed, Fred Jamison, Andrew Wood, Homer Ogden, T. B. Houston, W. L. Job, Cyril Madden and Edd Schooler, Maryville.

Those who registered for the poultry discussions yesterday, in addition to those whose names already have been published, were:

John A. Roberts, Stanberry; Mrs. Chas. J. Smith, Mrs. Ned Smith, Sidney Waldroff and Mrs. Sidney Waldroff, Clearmont; Fremont Lyle, Parnell, M. B. Harris, Mrs. Marlin Harris, Mrs. E. T. The Campaign Log

By United Press

Seretary of Commerce Hoover's name entered for the Republican primaries in Maryland, in order that his supporters might form a permanent organization.

Governor Adam McMullen of Nebraska invited as luncheon guest of vice-president Dawes in Washington, indicating possibility of new line-up of Nebraska Republican strength.

Senator James A. Reed endorsed as democratic presidential candidate by Missouri Democratic convention and instructed delegation for Reed decided upon.

William Hirth, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, protests against "stampeding Missouri Republicans to Hoover." He said the choice of Missouri farmers was Lowden, with Vice-President Dawes as second choice.

Dry forces at Washington meeting decided on meeting at St. Petersburg, Fla., to determine southern prohibition situation—a move looked upon as demand for a dry Democratic candidate for President.

Senator James A. Reed in Los Angeles told newspapermen that a campaign against "corruption in Washington" was the issue rather than prohibition.

Frank O. Lowden in a personal affidavit filed with the North Dakota Secretary of State, entered his name on the presidential primaries ballots. His name already had been entered by friends.

Representative Tillman, Democrat, Arkansas, charged Secretary of Commerce Hoover had "declined to be frank" in answering Senator Borah's prohibition questionnaire.

Lowden forces make known they have no intention of entering the Michigan primaries.

Chicago Republicans Demand Coolidge Run

Chicago, Feb. 29.—The Thompson-Crowe Cook county Republican organization, in convention here this afternoon, unanimously adopted a resolution demanding that Cook county delegates to the state Republican convention advocate drafting of President Calvin Coolidge to run for another term.

The resolution was read by Mayor William Hale Thompson.

The convention also adopted a resolution demanding a national referendum for repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Bridge at Jefferson City to Be Made Free

Holding Company to Receive Tolls, Expecting to Pay Purchase Cost in Five Years.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 29.—The privately owned toll bridge across the Missouri River here at midnight tonight will pass into the hands of a holding Company, ultimately to become a free bridge.

At that hour the newly formed Capital City Bridge Holding Company here will officially take over the bridge from the Missouri Power and Light Company and start payment of $366,000 purchase price from tolls.

The new company was formed by the Jefferson city Chamber of Commerce with Mayor Thomas as president. It is expected the tolls will pay for the bridge in five or six years and it will then become a free bridge.

The structure was built in 1895 by popular subscription and was opened July 4, 1896.

A Grand Jury Into Kansas City Robbery

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 29.—The Jackson county grand jury was called upon today to take part in the investigation into Kansas City's $50,000 bank robbery.

L. R. Toyne, chief of detectives, said that witnesses to the bank robbery would be permitted to testify before the grand jury. The action was regarded here as official recognition of intimidation and threats which have been reported from witnesses.

NOTES ABOUT THE NODAWAY DELEGATION

Convention Visitors Get Home Early.—J. B. Robinson Has "No Sore Spots."

Nearly all the Democrats of Maryville and Nodaway County, who attended the Democratic state convention at St. Joseph returned home last night. The convention concluded its session about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon after being in session about four hours and thirty minutes. It was one of the shortest Democratic state conventions ever held.

The Maryville and Nodaway County delegates were disappointed that James B. Robinson of Maryville was defeated as a district delegate to the national convention at Houston, Tex. Nodaway County had expected the support of the Buchanan county delegation but when the time came, that county voted for R. B. Bridgeman, a lawyer of Oregon.

After Mr. Bridgeman was elected, Mr. Robinson congratulated his opponent and said he had "no sore spots." A number of Democrats in St. Joseph, friends of Mr. Robinson, worked in his behalf but the party leaders in that city had issued their instructions.

Mrs. C. P. Fryer, Mrs. James B. Robinson, Mrs. M. A. Peery, Mrs. Arthur Noid and Mrs. Byron Costello attended the convention. The Maryville women had seats on the platform.

Clyde A. Perkins of Barnard, one of the delegates from Nodaway County, received much newspaper mention at the convention. His picture was carried in the Kansas City Star, St. Joseph News-Press and the St. Joseph Gazette. The News-Press had the following:

"The biggest man in the convention announced today for Charles M. Hay for United States senator and Francis M. Wilson for governor. He is enthusiastic for both men.

"He is Clyde A. Perkins of Barnard, Mo. He weighs 470 pounds and thinks he has no near competitor as the 'biggest man' at the gathering.

"Mr. Perkins until last Saturday was employed on the Barnard Bulletin. He quit his newspaper job then and is free to spend all his time for the next day or two at the Democratic convention. He formerly was employed at the state legislature."

Senator M. E. Ford, who is completing his first term in the state senate, has quite a wide acquaintance over Missouri. He was kept busy during the convention, meeting people from all sections of the state. Senator Ford is held in high regard by these acquaintances.

It would be nearly impossible to give the names of all those from this county who attended the convention.

Democrats Endorse Reed, Take His Words as Their Platform

The Democratic party of Missouri, in convention yesterday at St. Joseph, indorsed Senator James A. Reed in the strongest terms for the party nomination for the Presidency and adopted as its platform the declaration of principles as laid down by Senator Reed in his speech at the Sedalia Democratic rally last October.

L. C. Cook of Maryville was one of the members of the resolutions committee.

The platform:

"The Democratic party of Missouri, in convention assembled, reaffirms its advocacy of, and allegiance to, those timehonored principles which have in every administration, when our party was in power, from the days of Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson to the days of Grover Cleveland and Woodrow Wilson, characterized our party as the exponent of free government and the champion of the rights of all the people.

Senate Loses "Shining Light."

"We heartily endorse the great work and acknowledged leadership of the brilliant senior senator from Missouri, the Honorable James A. Reed. His services in the United States senate have excited the admiration of all the people, and we acclaim him a peerless champion in the cause of good government. He has now seen fit to declare his intention to retire from the senate of the United States, where he has labored and wrought so long and ably for the state of Missouri, and the people of the United States. In his leaving that body, it loses its shining light and the state of Missouri the services of a great and brilliant statesman.

"In a way unparalleled in public annals he has scourged those who have bought and sold public offices and made public office a private opportunity. He has held as sacred the privilege of the ballot, and driven from office those who would lay their corrupting hands upon it. His courageous battle to keep elections pure, to make sure that venality shall not taint the very source of our government, to drive corruption from the citadels of the republic, has stirred the souls of all citizens, regardless of party.

"Senator Reed's consummate ability, unfaltering courage, unquestioned honesty and great services have earned for him the nomination by our party for the office of President. His faithfulness to the trusts heretofore reposed in him warrant our earnest belief and assertion that in the office of President his statesmanship, capabilities and character will find a larger field of public usefulness. We pledge our full and hearty support of his candidacy for the high office. We call upon the Democrats of Missouri as individuals to use their influence with their friends and relatives in other states by correspondence, or otherwise, in presenting his qualifications for the presidency.

"In Reed's Words."

"About to enter upon a great national campaign we adopt as our declaration of principles the ringing words of Senator Reed:

"'Let us rally our forces to the flag of the Constitution, let us make our fight beneath banners proclaiming:

"'The inalienable rights of the citizens, among which are liberty of conscience, without coercion, criticism or obloquy.

"'The right of every man to worship God according to the dictates of his own conscience, and that none shall make him afraid.

"'The right of free speech, free press and peaceable assemblage.

"'The right of each citizen to regulate his own personal conduct, chart his own course through life, determine his own habits and to control the affairs of his own household, free from all restraints, save that in the exercise of these natural privileges he will not interfere with the rights of others.

"'Let us reassert the truth of the doctrine that if this people are to remain free, local self-government and the sovereignty of the states must be preserved.

"'That federal power should be brought within the limits not only of the letter, but also within the spirit of the Constitution.

"'The march of centralization must be arrested.

"'Government by boards and bureaucracies must cease.

Honest Government.

"'Let us demand:

"'The honest administration of government.

"'The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribemongers and other malefactors.

"'The equalization of the burden of taxation.

"The repeal of all laws creating special privileges.

"The liberation of honest business from oppressive interference by governmental agents.

"'The prosecution and punishment of those who by trusts, combinations and restraints of trade make war on honest business and despoil the people.

"'Let us advocate the American doctrine, which places the interests of our country and our people above that of any and all other aims to make American citizens the freest, happiest and most prosperous people on earth; and which rejects all policies calculated to imperil the rights or jeopardize the majesty and security of the United States.

"'Let us demand that the government shall in all proper ways assist in the development of the natural resources of the land, that it shall immediately develop and execute a plan to control and conserve our great inland waters; harness their power, develop the arid lands of the West, protect the great valley states from inundation, and place upon our mighty rivers and lake argosies which will bear an immense commerce, thus commercially uniting the interior states with the Panama Canal.

For Merchant Marine.

"'We should insist upon the encouragement and development of a great merchant marine which will not only carry our commerce to all ports of the world in American ships and beneath the American flag, but which will also strengthen our defense upon the seas in case of war.

"'Our demand should be for honest elections, the jailing of every rogue who polutes the ballot—the expulsion from office of every man whose title is tainted with fraud, or whose certificate was obtained by corrupt methods, whether practiced by himself or on his own behalf.'

"We instruct the Missouri delegates to the national Democratic convention to vote as a unit for the nomination of Senator James A. Reed so long as his name is before the convention and until personally released by him."

Mrs. Leslie Griffey of Parnell was in town yesterday.

SOCIETY

Mrs. M. E. Ford to Represent the A. A. U. W.

Mrs. M. E. Ford was chosen to represent the Maryville branch of the American Association of University Women at the convention of the association which will be held in Fort Worth, Tex., in the late spring, at a meeting of the organization at the home of Mrs. Charles T. Bell last night. Mrs. Ford is a state officer of the organization.

Miss Zelmira Biaggi of Porto Rico, a student at Park College, Parkville, who is spending two days giving talks at the college here, spoke to the association last night. She mentioned the attitude of the people of Porto Rico toward the United States stating that the people of her country felt that this country showed too much superiority. She pointed out that there are two parties in Porto Rico, those who stand for independence and those who take things as they come and are willing to accept U. S. domination.

Miss Biaggi said that the Independents failed ot see that the country had made its greatest progress under U. S. sponsorship.

The fact that Porto Ricans are not allowed to fly their own flag and must fly that of the United States is a point of contention. Also the fact that English is taught by compulsion in the schools causes disapproval, the speaker declared. The superiority of United States over Porto Rico is not felt by Porto Ricans who are in this country, she said.

She spoke of learning the English language and the difficulties of learning our "slang." Miss Biaggi spoke to the International Relations group, also. Miss Mattie M. Dykes, president of the association, spoke to this group on "The Pan-American Conference." Miss Elizabeth White spoke on Tacna-Arica.

In the pre-school group Miss Dora B. Smith conducted the meeting. The outline of study on children's interest was completed. The psychology of play was discussed including the character, use and construction of various play materials, including dolls and locks. The next subject which this group will take up will be literature for the pre-school child.

In the Literature group Mrs. W. S. Woodhull gave a review of the life of August Strindberg, considered the foremost Swedish writer of modern times. Among his plays which she discussed were "The Father," and "The Dance of Death."

Miss Olive DeLuce spoke to this group on "The Weavers," Hauptmann's play, and drew a parallel stating that the same heaviness found in German art also is found in the literature of the country.

The assisting hostesses last night were Miss DeLuce, Miss Minnie James and Miss Blanche Dow.

Mrs. E. O. Turner, of Centralia, who is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. Ross Fleetwood, and Mr. Fleetwood, was a guest at the meeting.

SOLID BEHIND SENATOR REED

SLATE IS UNBROKEN AT DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

A LARGER DELEGATION

At Candidate's Request, 16 Members Are Added.—To Vote as Unit at Houston Meeting.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 29.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri stood today as the unanimous choice of Missouri Democrats for the presidential nomination.

The state Democratic convention, in its closing session yesterday, not only adopted the Democratic slate endorsed by Reed, but voted to send an instructed delegation of 56 members to Houston, Tex., with 36 votes for Reed in the national convention.

The action of the state convention was in marked contrast to its attitude eight years ago, when Reed was read out of the party because of his feud with President Wilson.

Old Strife Forgotten.

The old state party strife was forgotten in the enthusiasm of assuring Reed a solid delegation at the national convention.

In a resolution endorsing Reed, the convention declared his services in the United States Senate had "excited the admiration of all the people, and we acclaim him a peerless champion in the cause of good government."

"In a way unparalleled in public annals," the resolution said. "He has scourged those who have bought and sold public offices and made public office a private opportunity. He has held as sacred the privilege of the ballot and driven from office those who would lay their corrupting hands on it."

Delegation Increased.

At the request of Senator Reed, the convention added sixteen members to the Missouri delegation to the national convention, making 56 delegates. They will be the twelve Missouri Democratic representatives in Congress and Senator Harry B. Hawes, Mrs. Katherine Halterman, former Governor Frederick D. Gardner and Samuel W. Fordyce, the latter Democratic state chairman and national campaign manager for Reed.

The members of the "Big Eight" elected to represent Missouri at the national convention were: Charles M. Howell, Kansas City; Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, Bunceton, E. J. White and Bennett Clark, St. Louis; Mrs. R. J. Curdy, Kansas City; Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, St. Louis; Mrs. Thelma Campbell, Kirksville, and Mrs. C. A. Richart, Blackburn.

The convention also elected by acclamation two presidential electors-at-large, naming Thomas R. Dodge of Milan, and Judge Henry S. Priest of St. Louis.

Mrs. Faris Elected.

The contest over the election of a woman member of the Democratic National committee from Missouri, which had threatened the only real fight of the convention, faded away when the balloting was begun and ended with the election of Mrs. C. B. Faris of St. Louis by acclamation.

Mrs. Frances M. Wise of Mexico and Mrs. Ella Jean Flanders of Excelsior Springs withdrew as candidates when nominations were made. Mrs. Harvey Gray of Blairstown was Mrs. Faris' only opponent when the roll call of the counties was about one-half completed, and Mrs. Faris was lengthening her lead. Mrs. Gray withdrew as a candidate.

William T. Kemper of Kansas City was re-elected by acclamation for his second term as Democratic National Committeeman from Missouri. There had been no opposition to his re-election.

Talks on Feeding the Laying Flock

Average Production Can Be Doubled Berley Winton Says at Farmer's Week.

A talk by Berley Winton on the "Feeding of the Laying Flock" came as an addition to the first day's program yesterday at the Farmer's Week of the State Teachers College and the extension service of the Missouri College of Agriculture.

On the average grain feed, he said the production is sixty-five eggs a year. With the addition of a few other specified foodstuffs this yield may easily be doubled.

If yellow corn is fed, green feed is not essential, but if white corn is used some green feed must be included in the ration, such as bright cured alfalfa, clover, or bean hay, he said.

Mr. Winton stated that one-third grain should be fed in the morning and two-thirds at night, and that although there was high egg production from the flock, and plenty of milk is being given, it is well to include a mash mixture, especially in the winter. This mash mixture should contain 200 lbs. bran, 200 lbs. corn meal, 150 lbs. tankage, and 7 lbs. salt. If much milk is fed, the quantity of tankage should be reduced to 75 pounds. In all mash mixtures, a high per cent of fibre must be guarded against.

It is always advisable, he said, to allow poultry to run outside as much as possible, if a good place is provided to which they may return.

A running foot of hopper for mash should be provided for every five hens on the farm.

Mr. Winton advised the feeding of mash every day of the year, since the gain in yield is greater than the added expense.

While oyster shell and water are necessary to the growth of chickens, Mr. Winton says that grit is not essential, even though advisable. Neither is Cod Liver Oil necessary if chicken houses are of the ordinary Missouri type with open front allowing plenty of unfiltered sunlight to shine upon the flock, he said.

Graham Minister Is Speaker at Hi-Y Club

Rev. Ralph Hicks Urges Maryville Boys to Maintain Standards of Fair Play.

Ralph Hicks, pastor of the M. E. Church at Graham and Swan Chapel, southwest of Maryville, was a speaker this morning at the Hi-Y Club meeting at the Maryville high school. The Reverend Mr. Hicks spoke on "The Game of Life."

"Everything in life takes the spirit of fair play if it is to be worthwhile and succeed," he told the Maryville Club.

Mr. Hicks until three weeks ago was associated in Y. M. C. A. work in Kansas City and was a Hi-Y leader, taking charge of the Manual club and later the East high club.

Although Edward Hickman was not in any of his clubs Mr. Hicks had met and known him. "He was a leader in his school and took part in Hi-Y work but never was prominent in that field," the Graham minister said.

PORTO RICAN AT COLLEGE

GIRL STUDENT AT PARK, TELLS OF HER COUNTRY.

DISCUSSES THE UNREST

Zelmira Biaggi Says Her Countrymen Resent Attitude of Superiority of Americans.

A joint meeting of the State Teachers College Y. M. C. A., and Y. W. C. A., yesterday afternoon was addressed by a Porto Rican girl, Zelmira Biaggi, a senior at Park College, Parkville.

Miss Biaggi's talk presented to a large attendance of students and faculty members of the College, in open-minded fashion, the attitude of natives of Porto Rico toward citizens of the United States, saying very plainly that they feel that visitors from the United States show their feeling of superiority over the natives of the island in every aspect of life. This attitude is greatly resented by the islanders.

Porto Rico, according to her statement, is a hundred miles long, thirty miles wide and has a population of about 3,000,000. The name means "rich port." Rather ironically, she said "rich for America, poor for Porto Rico" was the common sentiment of her native people.

Under Spanish Regime.

In 1493 the island was discovered. Ponce de Leon was the first to take it under the Spanish flag and give it a name. Under the regime of Spain, she said, there was no prosperity, but in 1898, when the United States took possession, her economic, social, and industrial growth began.

Miss Biaggi gave a detailed account of the social life in her homeland, describing the different gradations which determine a person's standing, and the restrictions put upon certain classes.

The sports of the United States and the island were discussed. She also spoke of religion, which she said was mostly Catholic. Education and politics were discussed.

Two political parties exist. Those who wish Porto Rico to remain a state subject to the United States form one and those who wish independence form the other. The latter group is composed largely of persons who have been educated in schools under American supervision.

The schools supported by the United States include but one course in Spanish. All the other language courses are in English. She says that the Americans are attempting to educate the youth of her country to American manners of thinking, and that this is one feature that her countrymen dislike.

Porto Ricans Barred.

"Americans have an idea of their superiority. You show it too much I think," she said. "For example, the Americans have their dance halls (casinos), but no Porto Rican is allowed to come there, while the Americans attend the casinos of the Porto Ricans and dance with natives regularly."

She says that here in America she can detect no such attitude, but that the people of the island do notice it there very much and they greatly resent it.

Touching on other Latin-American countries' attitude toward the United States, she gave an example of a Colombian woman, during our long-standing dispute with that country, refusing to shake hands with President Roosevelt during his visit to the Canal Zone, saying that no good Colombian woman should shake hands with a man like Roosevelt.

Of course Miss Biaggi did not omit praise for Lindbergh.

Miss Biaggi played several numbers on the piano typifying Spanish and Porto Rican music.

To have a student with the advantages and disadvantages of having lived under two environments, influences and tongues, was a treat to the attentive audience.

Miss Biaggi's straightforward, informal manner of address, and her open-mindedness made her a popular speaker. The Y. W. C. A. hopes to persuade her to stay until Thursday. At noon today she met many students, who were given the privilege of asking questions and discussing different topics of interest with her.

Miss Biaggi, while in Maryville, is a guest of Miss Mary Todd at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Todd.

HOW TO FEED BABY CHICKS

SPECIALIST GIVES METHODS TO GET BEST RESULTS.

BEGIN AT FIFTY HOURS

Bills Dipped Into Sour Milk Then.—Cracked Yellow Corn Best.—Ration Given in Detail.

Taking up the problem of feeding and graining baby chicks, Berley Winton, specialist of the Extension Department of the University of Missouri, enumerated and proportioned the constituents going into the correct mash for baby chicks yesterday afternoon at the second session of Farmers Week at the State Teachers College.

First stating that no ration in the commercial field can be said to be the best, he took up the fundamental principles that must govern the feeding of chicks and the mixing of chick mash in order to obtain the best results.

The following is the plan carried out at the University:

After the brood is fifty hours of age and not before, the bill of each chick is dipped into sour milk. Although this process takes time and patience, Mr. Winton emphasized that it should be done to insure that each chick get a little.

The next food given them is cracked yellow corn. This, he emphasized, is the very best grain that can be found for chicks because it is palatable, provides heat and vitamin A, a content which no other grain contains. Furthermore, it is more economical, he explained.

Infertile Eggs Fed to Chicks.

Two hours after this is eaten by the chicks, either a mixture of rolled oats and infertile hard boiled eggs, ground finely, or the two given separately, is put before the brood. Three eggs are provided for every hundred chicks for the first week. During the second week, six per day are fed, and during the third, nine, because, it must be remembered that baby chicks grow extremely fast.

Feeding of mash is the next step taken. The constituency used at the University is as follows: bran, 30 lbs., shorts, 30 lbs., yellow corn meal, 30 lbs., dried milk, 25 lbs., bone meal, to provide phosphorus, 5 lbs.; salt, 5 lbs.

Mr. Winton said dried milk was not necessary but was preferable because small chicks are likely to get wet if skim milk is put at their disposal, and in the spring months may chill.

Two hours later the grain is again fed, and in another two hours the mash again. Up to the second or third week the grain is kept before them about a third of the time and then, as they grow older, they are given access to it for a longer time during the day. He advises feeding often but not much at a time, and says it is a good rule to fill the chicks with grain for the night.

Urges Feeding in Hoppers.

Mr. Winton stressed that grain be fed in hoppers and calculated that for every hundred chicks, a hopper six inches wide, four feet long and two inches high be used. If hopper space is limited, chicks are not able to get an equal amount.

Water was the next consideration. The speaker stated that if a great deal of milk is fed, the chicks do not need water for about twelve weeks, because milk contains 90 per cent water.

In the matter of providing calcium Mr. Winton said that either limestone or oyster shell can be used but that the latter is used with the best results. Limestone, he said, is likely to contain too much magnesium carbonate, which causes slow growth.

Unless chicks are given plenty of direct sunlight, Mr. Winton emphasized, does not mean the rays shining through a glass window, saying that in this case the ultra-violet rays of the sun are filtered out, eliminating a very important factor in the effectiveness of the sun's rays. If direct sunlight is impossible, part of this lack can be made up by substitution of one quart of Cod Liver Oil in the mash already described. If this oil is fed, however, it should be taken out of the ration two or three weeks before the sale of chickens on the market.

Meat Scraps After 10 weeks.

When the chicks are ten weeks old, ten pounds of meat scraps are substituted for the milk content to provide strength-giving material.

Mr. Winton warned against decreasing the amount of feed because egg prices drop, as chick feeders are prone to do. The financial success of chick feeding is dependent upon the kinds, amount and regularity of feed given them, he said.

The speaker warned also against any attempt to raise two or more different broods of chicks together. Younger chicks obviously need more warmth, and a different ration, than do older ones and it is impossible to raise them profitably on such a program, he said. Although the separate care of broods differing in age entails much expense, it is justified in the end by the returns on hardy chicks, he argued.

Furthermore, if several cockerels are kept for breeding purposes, they should be separated from the pullets, and it will be found that both will do better.

In concluding his lecture, Mr. Winton gave some statistics calculated from the report of some experimentation last year among 125 different chicken raisers of the state. The figures show that out of 122,128 chicks raised by the above method, a crop of 107,558 were raised. This amounts to about 89 per cent, while the ordinary average is about 35 per cent.

Careful as to Tankage.

The persons present were allowed to ask questions after the talk. On the subject of tankage, which was brought up, the speaker said that it was good if it was a high grade product. He warned against any kind, however, that did not show a content of at least 60 per cent protein and not more than 2 to 3 per cent fibre.

He stated that he had not forgotten charcoal in his outlined ration but that science had disproved its necessity. A University of California experiment shows that very little gas is given off in the process of digestion and that no charcoal is needed to absorb it.

That sour milk in galvanized containers is poisonous was refuted by the lecturer, but he advised against using it in new galvanized tins.

Suggests Ways to Overcome Hog Sanitation Difficulties

Some methods for solving a few of the pertinent difficulties which will be met in following the hog sanitation method have been suggested by J. Ross Fleetwood, county extension agent. He believes that ultimately by following the sanitation system a plan may be evolved so that each man will keep fewer sows and take better care of them. "Undoubtedly many wormy, diseased pigs actually lost money," he said.

Mr. Fleetwood's suggestions for the sanitation method are:

"Pasture: Legume pastures are, of course, desirable but not always available. Small pastures of 5 to 10 acres may be fenced, limed and fertilized and seeded to a 3 or 4 year rotation of corn, corn, oats and clover. This takes time, however, and oats and rape, or a field sowed one-half to oats and one-half later to sudan gives excellent pasture. Anything is better than the old lots.

Houses: Individual houses are the ideal. Long colony houses open to the south may be built out of old lumber, poles and straw. Some men have used bales of straw to make houses. Anything furnishing shelter is likely to prove less harmful than leaving in the old lots.

Water: On bottom lands wells can be constructed, but in most cases water must be hauled. Automatic waterers on sleds, and holding 100 gallons of water are not expensive. A gasoline barrel may be placed in a trough and a hole punched in the barrel below the top of the trough, when the barrel is filled and the top plug stuck in, this will make an automatic waterer.

Feed: The feed can be hauled out in an old wagon and fed on the poorest spots in the field. One load of feed will last for several days.

Tells How to Keep the Chicks Healthy

Dr. A. J. Durant Discusses Prevention and Cure of the Roundworm and the Tapeworm.

A liberal outline for the prevention of worm-infested broods and the cure of already contaminated flocks was given by Dr. A. J. Durant in the second address of yesterday afternoon's session of Farmer's week at the State Teachers College. Dr. Durant spoke on "Natural Parasites and Their Control."

Considering the two most common and destructive parasites, the roundworm and tapeworm, he gave the characteristics of both, explaining how they work, propagate, and the manner in which they infest baby chicks.

The roundworm, he said, lives in the intestine of the baby chick and lives upon the food taken into the chick's body, while the tapeworm bores into the walls of the intestine, sucks the blood and saps the vitality of the growing chick or adult.

In the droppings of the infested foul are thousands of eggs of these roundworms. If these are taken up by the chicken while fresh they are harmless, but if allowed to incubate or develop in the warm soil, they become destroyers when taken into the body of the foul. The worms can live in the soil for a year and then develop in the warmth brought on by spring. Thus ground upon which infested flocks run year after year become very much infested, and uninfested fouls become infested upon running over the soil and eating off it.

Tapeworm in Segments.

The tapeworm as is shown under the microscope is in segments, each of which is capable of reproduction. The manner in which fouls are infected by this parasite is more complicated than in the case of the round worm. If the eggs are eaten by the chicks they are harmless. To become active they are first consumed by flies and other insects and in them develop. When the chicken eats flies and other insects which have eaten the eggs or egg-bearing material, they become infested.

Tapeworm infested fouls may be detected by the fact that they eat in abnormal quantities but make no apparent growth. If, when the chicks are three or four weeks old, one is cut open for examination and it is found afflicted, one may be fairly certain that the entire flock is so infested. In a mature hen, it is not uncommon to find worms of this type and yet find the hen healthy and fat. In this case, Mr. Durant warned, it is fatal to give worm medicine to her, because it kills egg production. He further strengthened this point by saying that any change in routine of feeding or treatment is inadvisable when the hen is laying well. If the individual insists on administering worm treatment, however, it should be done in the latter part of August, when egg production is at a low ebb.

For prevention, Dr. Durant advised movable brooder houses. These should be moved on a rotation plan of a move of at least fifty yards at a time for three times before coming back to the original location. Feeding places should be plowed annually and heavily seeded. The balanced ration, of course, should be kept up to supply vigor and stamina.

If infested, the best cure, according to the speaker, is two pounds of finely ground tobacco mixed in the hundred pounds of mash. This must not contain more than 1½ to 2 per cent of nicotine. If more than this is contained in the dust, the chickens will be killed by the poison. Ordinary tobacco leaf or stem dust is not fit for this use.

Mr. Durant recommended a product called Kamala for tape worm infested fouls. This is obtained in capsules for individual treatment.

The efficiency of combining Kamala and tobacco dust is not as great as when given separately, he said.

Estimates show that there were about 150 to 200 persons present during the afternoon session, as compared with 141 during the morning session. A majority of those present were women.

TELLS VALUE OF PHOSPHATE WITH CLOVER

This Fertilizer Almost Essential to a Successful Stand, Says D. O. Belt.

Many clover stands are lost because of lack of sufficient plant food to stimulate the growth of the plant to give it the vigor it should have to make the necessary growth to withstand the hot, dry summer and fall weather, in the belief of D. O. Belt, a Missouri "Master Farmer." Mr. Belt advises the use of super-phosphate as an essential food to the successful growth of clover.

He states that the season is again here for the sowing of clover seed and many farmers are wondering whether it will grow until the grain crop is taken off and then die because it has not made sufficient root system to reach down to a depth where the moisture is greater.

Under reasonable conditions, Mr. Belt says super-phosphate is almost an insurance to a successful stand. If soil is depleted in this essential plant food, the substitution of super-phosphate will bring amazing results with clover. It also has an influence in increasing the yield of the small grains, Mr. Belt says.

He says further, "My experience in growing clover by the use of super-phosphate is such that I would not even think of sowing any legume crop without an application of about 200 pounds. An application of super phosphate sown in the row, with potatoes, about one gallon to the 100 feet, on well drained soil, will almost double the yield when properly cared for," he continued.

"If my experience in the use of fertilizer will be of any value to anyone interested in using some super-phosphate this spring I will gladly give this service."

Because the super-phosphate has not been carried regularly by dealers, a number of farmers have pooled orders through Mr. Belt.

MARTIN NOW POULTRYMAN

WELL KNOWN LIVESTOCK BREEDER BRANCHES OUT.

HAS HIGH TYPE FLOCK

By Careful Selection and Use of Best Cockerels, He Expects High Egg Production.

A. R. Martin, who lives a mile and a half north of the Burlington station, widely known as a breeder of livestock, has branched off into the poultry business.

Mr. Martin has built one Missouri type poultry house and likes it so well he is going to build another, he told Elmer Coats, vocational agriculture instructor of the Maryville High school. The boys of the vocational class recently completed an 8-foot chicken feeder for Mr. Martin at an approximate cost of $10.

Mr. Martin, although just starting out in this phase of farming, has a flock of 185 Single Comb White Leghorns of the Tancred strain which are now producing more than 100 eggs a day. He is feeding them a balanced ration at the present time.

Mr. Coats thinks that Mr. Martin has one of the best bred flocks in the county. He obtained his flock from the highest producing hens of Plumb at Fairfax and is using a practical method of flock improvement, in that he selected fifty of the best hens, placed them in a pen and has obtained four cockerels from a 317-egg hen. Mr. Martin believes that the pullet largely inherits her egg laying ability through the male parent and for this reason is getting the high type of cockerels.

In regard to his poultry house, he built a 24 by 24 foot Missouri type last fall. The material cost him $250. Mr. Martin said that he had no sick chickens, the house is not damp and this type of a house provides more scratching space. It gives plenty of ventilation and sunlight. Mr. Martin built it on a concrete floor.

Mr. Martin is planning to get a setting of eggs from Plumb's highest producing hens to raise his cockerels from this year. He will then use these four cockerels to head his breeding pen next year, and believes that by using this system of selection and breeding he will increase the egg production of the flock from 10 to 15 per cent.

Mr. Martin paid $50 for the six cockerels he got from Fairfax, but lost two. He expects to raise 250 mature pullets and to do this he will have to set about 1,000 eggs. He expects to take the cockerels from his high producing hens and sell the best as breeders and the rest he will sell as milk fed cockerels.

When the pullets are four and a half to five months old, he plans to transfer them to the laying house and place them on an egg laying ration.

On the Martin farm also is a brooder house, 12 by 12 feet. It cost from $35 to $40 complete. Mr. Martin told Mr. Coats that he figured the Missouri type of poultry house was the cheapest he could build per bird.

T. B. in Cattle Shows Big Drop in 10 Years

Ten years ago, soon after he had taken charge of the Tuberculosis Eradication Division of the United States Department of Agriculture, the late Dr. J. A. Kiernan made the significant and prophetic statement that "tuberculosis can be eradicated from all the cattle and all the swine in the United States."

At that time official testing showed that 4.9 per cent of the cattle were infected with tuberculosis, and figures on 40,000,000 hogs slaughtered under the Federal inspection indicated that 10 per cent of all the swine in the United States were infected.

At the close of 1927 the same sources of information indicated that tuberculosis in cattle had decreased to 2.9 per cent infection, and that although the disease in swine had increased from 10 per cent in 1917 to 15.2 per cent in 1924 it has gradually been decreasing since that time and at the close of 1927 was 13.5 per cent.

There are now 401 counties, or 13 per cent of the entire number in the United States, classed as modified accredited areas because they have less than one-half of 1 per cent infection in cattle. In addition to these free counties there are 627 others engaged in the work looking to modification. This total of 1,028 counties, either modified or working to that end, constitutes one-third of the total number of counties in the United States. A total of 18,610,865 head of cattle are now under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis.

In reviewing the last 10 years' work, Dr. A. E. Wight, acting chief of the division, said that this marked decrease of infection in both cattle and swine has been accomplished as a result of the intensive campaign against the disease. It is apparent, he says, that the prophecy made in 1917 relative to the possibility of controlling and eradicating thos disease is being borne out. He emphasizes the necessity, however, of continued and determined effort to completely eradicate the disease as early as possible. If a feeling of security is permitted to exist to the detriment of organized efforts, dire results may yet occur in some localities.

BEEF CATTLE IN U.S. FEWER

DECREASE OF 22 MILLIONS IN 25 YEARS.

AFFECTS CORN RAISER

Passing of Old "Wild West" Results in Gradual Decrease in Number of Livestock in Country.

Washington, Feb. 29.—The passing of the old "wild west" ranches has resulted in a gradual decrease in the number of beef cattle in the United States.

Agriculture Department experts estimate there are about 22,000,000 fewer beef cattle, sheep and swine in the country than there were 25 years ago. Over the same period the population of the United States has increased 35,000,000.

The decrease in meat animals has also effected the corn farmer. Ten years ago corn fields aggregated about 107,000,000 acres while this year the corn planting will be about 98,000,000 acres, a shrinkage of nearly 1,000,000 acres a year.

Dr. J. R. Mohler, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, said these changes are evidences of a growing industrialization of the United States.

Same Change as in Britain.

"This country is undergoing much the same change that occurred during the last century in Great Britain," he said. "At that time the British Isles were agriculturally prominent. Agriculture in turn was largely a livestock enterprise.

"I need not dwell on the excellence of British livestock for it ranks with the world's best. Yet for many years it has been over shadowed by industrial development, such as manufactures, mining, and the acquisition of a world-wide commercial trade.

"The United States is undergoing a similar change. We may point with pride to our 173,000,000 domestic animals. We may assert that the livestock population of the country, not counting poultry, exceeds the human population by 50,000,000 head.

"We may call attention to the large meat consumption of the United States and the progress made in improving the quality of animals and in reducing the rise of production.

Substitutes Not Adequate.

"But if we are honest with ourselves we must accept other facts. We must consider the livestock industry in relation with other developments."

Dr. Mohler said there are partial substitutes for many of the products of meat animals but none are adequate substitutes. He said that livestock raisers have two essential duties:

1. Increase the biological efficiency of their stock to the highest degree.

2. Convince and inform the public that livestock raising in the United States is an essential industry, which deserves consideration in proportion to the service it renders.

Calls Missouri Type Poultry House Ideal

Poultry Tribune, National Magazine, Praises House Designed by H. L. Kempster of Columbia.

Calling the Missouri type poultry house, designed by H. L. Kempster of the Missouri College of Agriculture, ideal for poultry anywhere in the United States and Canada, the Poultry Tribune, national poultry magazine, in its February issue, brings to the fore general acceptance of the poultry and farming public of the Missouri model for economy, durability, satisfaction and comfort. It gives plans and suggestion on the construction of the 20 x 20 foot model, forerunner of the 24 x 24, the 30 x 30 and the 40 x 40 foot models that will hold comfortably 125, 200, 300, and 500 average-sized birds respectively.

Winners in the poultry housing contest, announced in the same issue, include first prize of $50 won by B. H. Cronacher of Jefferson county, Missouri, with a Missouri Straw Loft House.

THE "CANARY" MURDER CASE

Charles © Scribner's Sons

By S. S. VAN DINE AUTHOR of THE BENSON MURDER CASE

CHARACTERS

PHILO VANCE
JOHN F.-X. MARKHAM, District Attorney of New York City.
MARGARET ODELL (THE "CANARY")
CHARLES CLEAVER, a man about-town
KENNETH SPOTSWOODE, a manufacturer
LOUIS MANNIX, an importer
DR. AMBROISE LINDQUIST, a fashionable neurologist
TONY SKEEL, a professional burglar
WILLIAM ELMER JESSUP, telephone operator
HARRY SPIVELY, telephone operator
ERNEST HEATH, Sergeant of the Homicide Bureau

THE STORY THUS FAR

Vance's theory is that two unknown persons were in the "Canary's" apartment on that fatal evening; one locked in a clothes closet, the other the man who strangled Margaret Odell. The murder is the most baffling one Vance ever has encountered. In no way can they account for the presence of anyone in the girl's apartment. The door to the alley was bolted on the inside and the man who had gone out with Margaret Odell the night before had been the only one to be seen with her, and circumstances completely eliminated him.

CHAPTER 12

Heath sought consolation in a new line of thought.

"Anyway," he submitted, "we know that the fancy fellow with the patent-leather pumps who called here last night at half past nine was probably Odell's lover, and was grafting on her."

"And in just what recondite way does that obvious fact help to roll the clouds away?" asked Vance. "Nearly every modern Delilah has an avaricious amoroso. It would be rather singular if there wasn't such a chap in the offing, what?"

"That's all right, too," returned Heath. "But I'll tell you something, Mr. Vance, that maybe you don't know. The men that these girls lose their heads over are generally crooks of some kind—professional criminals, you understand. That's why, knowing that this job was the mark of a proffessional, it don't leave me cold, as you might say, to learn that this fellow who was threatening Odell and grafting on her was the same one who was prowling around here last night . . . And I'll say this, too; the description of him sounds a whole lot like the kind of high-class burglars that hang out at these swell all-night cafes."

"You're convinced, then," asked Vance mildly, "that this job, as you call it, was done by a professional criminal?"

Heath was almost contemptuous in his reply. "Didn't the guy wear gloves, and use a jimmy? It was a yeggman's job, all right."

(Tuesday, Sept. 11; 11:45 a. m.)

Markham went to the window and stood, his hands behind him, looking down into the little paved rear yard. After several minutes he turned slowly.

"The situation, as I see it," he said, "boils down to this:—The Odell girl has an engagement for dinner and the theater with a man of some distinction. He calls for her a little after seven and they go out together. At eleven o'clock they return. He goes with her into her apartment and remains half an hour.

"He leaves at half past eleven and asks the phone operator to call him a taxi. While he is waiting the girl screams and calls for help, and in response to his inquiries she tells him nothing is wrong and bids him go away. The taxi arrives, and he departs in it. Ten minutes later someone telephones her, and a man answers from her apartment. This morning she is found murdered, and the apartment ransacked."

He took a long draw on his cigar.

"Now, it is obvious that when she and her escort returned last night, there was another man in this place somewhere; and it is also obvious that the girl was alive after her escort had departed. Therefore, we must conclude that the man who was already in the apartment was the person who murdered her.

"This conclusion is further corroborated by Doctor Doremus' report that the crime occurred between eleven and twelve. But since her escort did not leave till half past eleven, and spoke with her after that time, we can put the actual hour of the murder as between half past eleven and midnight. . . . These are the inferable facts from the evidence thus far adduced."

"There's not much getting away from 'em," agreed Heath.

"At any rate, they're interestin'," murmured Vance.

Markham, walking up and down earnestly, continued:

"The features of the situation revolving round these inferable facts are as follows: There was no one hiding in the apartment at seven o'clock—the hour the maid went home. Therefore, the murderer entered the apartment later.

"First, then, let us consider the side door. At six o'clock—an hour before the maid's departure—the janitor bolted it on the inside, and both operators disavow emphatically that they went near it. Moreover, you, Sergeant, found it bolted this morning. Hence, we may assume that the door was bolted on the inside all night, and that nobody could have entered that way. Consequently, we are driven to the inevitable alternative that the murderer entered by the front door.

"Now, let us consider this other means of entry. The phone operator who was on duty until ten o'clock last night asserts positively that the only person who entered the front door and passed down the main hall to this apartment was a man who rang the bell and, getting no answer, immediately walked out again. The other operator, who was on duty from ten o'clock until this morning, asserts with equal positiveness that no one entered the front door and passed the switchboard coming to this apartment.

"Add to all this the fact that every window on this floor is barred, and that no one from upstairs can descend into the main hall without coming face to face with the operator, and we are, for the moment, confronted with an impasse."

Heath scratched his head and laughed mirthlessly.

"It don't make sense, does it, sir?"

"What about the next apartment?" asked Vance, "the one with the door facing the rear passageway—No. 2, I think?"

Heath turned to him patronizingly. "I looked into that the first thing this morning. Apartment No. 2 is occupied by a single woman; and I woke her up at eight o'clock and searched the place. Nothing there. Anyway, you have to walk past the switchboard to reach her apartment the same as you do to reach this one; and nobody called on her or left her apartment last night.

"What's more Jessup, who's a shrewd, sound lad, told me this woman is a quiet, ladylike sort, and that she and Odell didn't even know each other."

"You're so thorough, Sergeant!" murmured Vance.

"Of course," put in Markham, "it would have been possible for someone from the other apartment to have slipped in here behind the operator's back between seven and eleven, and then to have slipped back after the murder. But as Sergeant Heath's search this morning failed to uncover anyone, we can eliminate the possibility of our man having operated from that quarter."

"I dare say you're right," Vance indifferently admitted. "But it strikes me, Markham old dear, that your own affectin' recapitulation of the situation jolly well eliminates the possibility of your man's having operated from any quarter. . . . And yet he came in, garroted the unfortunate damsel, and departed—eh, what? . . . It's a charmin' little problem. I wouldn't have missed it for worlds."

"It's uncanny," pronounced Markham gloomily.

"It's positively spiritualistic," amended Vance. "It has the caressin' odor of a seance. Really, y' know, I'm beginning to suspect that some medium was hovering in the vicinage last night doing some rather tip-top materializations. . . . I say Markham, could you get an indictment against an ectoplasmic emanation?"

"It wasn't no spook that made those finger-prints," growled Heath, with surly truculence.

Markham halted his nervous pacing and regarded Vance irritably!

"Damn it! This is rank nonsense. The man got in some way, and he got out, too. There's something wrong somewhere. Either the maid is mistaken about someone being here when she left, or else one of those phone operators went to sleep and won't admit it."

"Or else one of 'em's lying," supplemented Heath.

Vance shook his head. "The maid I'd say, is eminently trustworthy. And if there was any doubt about anyone's having come in the front door unnoticed, the lads on the switchboard would, in the present circumstances, be only too eager to admit ti. . . . No, Markham, you'll simply have to approach this affair from the astral plane, so to speak."

Markham granted his distaste of Vance's jocularity.

"That line of investigation I leave to you with your metaphysical theories and esoteric hypotheses."

"But, consider," protested Vance banteringly. "You've proved conclusively—or, rather, you've demonstrated legally—that no one could have entered or departed from this apartment last night; and, as you've often told me, a court of law must decide all matters, not in accord with the known or suspected facts, but according to the evidence; and the evidence in this case would prove a sound alibi for every corporeal being extant.

"And yet, it's not exactly tenable, d' ye see, that the lady strangled herself. If only it had been poison, what an exquisite and satisfyin' suicide case ou'd have! . . . Most inconsiderate of her homicidal visitor not to have used arsenic instead of his hands!"

"Well, he strangled her," pronounced Heath. "Furthermore, I'll lay my money on the fellow who called her last night at half past nine and couldn't get in. He's the bird I want to talk to."

"Indeed?" Vance produced another cigaret. "I shouldn't say, to judge from our description of him, that his conversation would prove particularly fascinatin'."

ATTACKS THE DIRECT BUYER

DROVERS TELEGRAM EDITOR TESTIFIES AT WASHINGTON.

HITS FEDERAL BUREAU

Information Regarding Practice Withheld, He Charges—60 Per Cent at Kansas City.

Washington, Feb. 29.—American farmers face calamity in direct buying of hogs by packers, Walter P. Neff, editor of the Kansas City Drovers Telegram, told the committee on agriculture and forestry today. Neff testified in a hearing on the Capper-Hope bill. He declared the practice of direct buying inevitably would force hog prices down on the open market.

The Capper-Hope bill, for which Neff spoke, would provide for government regulation of private stockyards of packing companies, throwing up a barrier to direct buying. Packers have maintained the practice is not detrimental to farmers and insist it is essential to proper operation of their plants.

Attacks Bureau of Economics.

In his support of the bill, Neff attacked the bureau of economics of the federal Department of Agriculture. He charged the bureau with withholding information regarding direct buying when, he said, that information was gathered solely for the benefit of farmers of the country and at their expense.

Neff cited statistics to show that approximately 60 per cent of the hogs marketed in Kansas City in January of this year were purchased under the direct buying plan.

"When the business of buying hogs direct is increasing at such an astonishing rate it is not surprising to find the order buyers on the public markets 'make the maket' 90 per cent of the days and that when the packers finally get into the market they break prices on 51 of those 278 buying days," Neff said.

Data on Purchases Denied.

"Through some kind of an arrangement, the bureau of economics of the Department of Agriculture has refused to make public the arrivals of 'direct' hogs by individual packers.

"On February 13, 1928, I applied in person to the office of the agricultural economics in Kansas for this information and it was refused. When I asked why, I was told that the Department of Agriculture felt that if the individual packers wanted the figures made public, they would do it themselves."

Neff then told the committee he was not interested in the welfare of commission companies that might be affected by the direct buying system. He said he merely sought to show the committee "that American hog raisers do not receive all their hogs are worth because of direct buying."

Theodore Guenther of Conception Junction was a Maryville visitor yesterday.

Mrs. Nina Pickens, who has been visiting in Maryville, returned to her home in Kansas City this morning.

Final Grain Review.

Chicago, Feb. 29.—Oats upset all expectations on the Chicago board of trade today by taking the lead in a general upturn that sent all grains sharply higher. Heavy profit taking on the bulge failed to kill the rally in oats and the close was ¼c to ⅜c higher. Unfavorable winter advices boosted wheat ⅛c to ⅝c up and corn closed ⅝c to ¾c higher on expectations of bullish private reports tomorrow.

Provisions closed higher.

Oats surprised everybody by advancing sharply during the morning.

Reports from winter wheat points continued to speak of considerable damage and abandonment of large areas. The advance in wheat was largely due to this news, and reflected strength from corn. The crop scare season is in full swing and the market responds readily to news from this quarter. There was little resistance to the upturn. Receipts totaled 21 cars and cash wheat was unchanged.

Private reports on farm reserves of corn, due tomorrow, are expected to be bullish. Despite forecasts for colder belt weather and heavy receipts of 427 cars today, this factor gave the market a surprisingly firm tone. There was some profit taking on the bulge but pressure was not heavy. Cash corn held unchanged to ½c higher, aiding the upturn.

Oats showed signs of life and the interest in the pit is beginning to quicken. Cash and elevator interests bought heavily this morning and all futures advanced around 1c. There was heavy profit taking on the bulge, however, and best prices were not holding late in the day. Farm reserves are low and terminal stocks are rapidly decreasing. Receipts today were 33 cars and the cash market advanced ½c.

BURLINGTON THE WINNER

JUNCTION TEAMS COP DOUBLE-HEADER FROM MARYVILLE.

MAIN GO ENDS 18-15

Better Shooting Decides Contest of Two Well-Matched Teams.—May Meet Again.

Burlington Junction High School closed its basketball season last night in the well known blaze of glory. Two Burlington cage teams swept down on the Maryville High School gymnasium last night and took both ends of a double-header by more consistent basket shooting.

In a scramble of white sweaters, the Burlington Junction and Spoofhound first teams clashed in a game anticipated for months, and the team wearing yellow numerals on their white jerseys won in a driving whirlwind finish by a score of 18 to 15, to administer the season's second defeat to the Spoofhounds.

As a preliminary game while the biggest crowd of the season was getting seated, Burlington's second team sent the Spoofhound second squad back to the showers with the small end of a 12 to 10 game. This preliminary was filled with many clown acts and scrambles for the ball on the floor, with both teams showing more defensive power than basket snagging ability.

Harlan Plummer, Hero.

Today in Burlington Junction, a tall, slim light haired lad, with a pleasing countenance is the hero of all. To one Harlan Plummer, Burlington's center, should go the honor of staging a rally almost single handed in the final quarter in which he garnered three consecutive field baskets and put his team three points to the good. This youth took good advantage of his height, generally getting the tip-off and under the basket was "poison" with his tip-in shots.

With the score 11 to 10 for the Spoofhounds when the whistle called the two rival teams together for the last quarter, ten youths, plying like demons, fought for possession of the ball. Taking matters more calmly the Spoofhounds appeared to be getting the best of the situation. A shot to Russell, who was near his goal, resulted in a three-point lead, 13 to 10, for the Spoofhounds.

But Burlington, always threatening, closed the gap as Milford Plummer, guard, cut down Maryville's lead to one point with a field basket. Then Harlan Plummer sent the Burlington fans wild as he made a field goal, which put his team in the lead.

Maryville countered as Wilson, Maryville forward, made a 2-pointer from a diffieult angle, again changing the lead.

With a clean shot from the left side of the court Harlan Plummer regained the lead for Burlington and caused the uproar of the fans to becoming deafening.

Makes Victory Sure.

The game rapidly was drawing to a close. H. L. Raines, timekeeper, was getting set to ring the gong—about a minute to play. Captain George McMurry committed a foul, his fourth, and he left the game, with Barrett going in at center. Harlan Plummer put the game on ice as he rolled in another basket and with only 20 seconds to play the Spoofhounds could not get possession of the ball.

The Burlington players took the lead at the start of the game before the Spoofhounds could collect their wits. A pass from Harlan Plummer to Manes resulted in what was almost a set-up. Milford Plummer, guard, then made his first goal, to put Burlington in a 4-point lead. Just a few seconds before the quarter ended George McMurry, Maryville center, after many futile attempts, found the hoop from near the free throw line and repeated this performance as the second quarter got under way, to knot the score 4-all.

Smith, Maryville guard, made good a free throw and again McMurry counted to give the Spoofhounds a three-point lead. Harlan Plummer cut this down to one point and the half ended 7 to 6 for Maryville.

McMurry again got in some deadly work with the beginning of the third quarter, snagging a field basket to make the count 9 to 6 for the Spoofhounds. Marvin Plummer, guard, counted a free throw, Harold Plummer, forward, then got his only field basket of the game to bring the score 9 to 9. Wilson found the iron loop to break the tie but Harlan Plummer added another free throw as the third quarter ended.

About Equal on Floor.

Coach C. K. Thompson brought a smooth functioning team to Maryville, which lived up to its reputation as a quintet to be feared. The ability of Spoofhounds and visitors on team work and floor work was about on an equal basis. Burlington made the most of its chances to score and this was the edge Thompson's team held over the Spoofhounds.

For Maryville, McMurry played his best game of the season. He was seen continually in the thick of the fight and had he been hitting the basket in the first quarter the score would have been different.

Both teams are entered in the sub-district tournament here this week-end at the College and both have been drawn in the lower bracket.

In order for them to meet in the tournament, however, they will have to go to the semi-finals. Burlington must dispose of Elmo and Skidmore, while Maryville will have to defeat Graham and the winner of the Hopkins-Bolckow match before meeting up with Burlington. If the two do meet again, the game will be well worth watching, as was the one last night.

The crowd last night was the biggest of the year. It was estimated more than 200 persons were turned away from the gate. The large attendance of Burlington fans was responsible for the crowded condition.

One of Greatest Mile Runs Tonight

New York, Feb. 29.—The smooth, gracefully curved track in Madison Square Garden will ge the battle-ground tonight for one of the greatest mile runs every contested.

Three of the world's foremost middle distance runners, who are certain to meet again when the Olympic Games are held in Amsterdam in July, will face the starter in the feature event of the Knights of Columbus Games.

Dr. Otto Peltzer of Germany, world's record holder for the half mile, is making his farewell and most ambitious challenge to American track supremacy. Opposed to the German champion will be Lloyd Hahn of Nebraska and the B. A. A. victor in 33 of his last 34 starts, defeated but once in two years of running. The third starter will be tall, blonde Ray Conger of the Illinois A. C., who has defeated both Peltzer and Hahn this month.
